There was a short session of the criminal superior court at New London on Friday afternoon, opening at two o'clock.

As soon as court opened State's Attorney Hull nsked for the imposing of sentence in the case of the state against William Riley. Mr. Hull said: "I am fully convinced that Kiley had nothing whatever to do with the killing of Copeland. Kiley knew a robbery had been committed and assisted against Bogardus had it been found on his person. This, and the acceptance of some silver money, placed in Kiley's hand by Bogardus, after the murder, are the only acts Kiley was implicated in. He did know robbery had been committed and he did know that Bogardus had taken the money from Cepeland violently. The evidence discloses sufficient to make Kiley sullty of being an accessory after the fact of robbery.

Clerk Parsons then read the information and Kiley, holding up his right hand, in a weak, uncertain voice said: "Guilty."

Mr. Hull then recommended Kiley to the mercy of the court. "In view to the mercy of the court. "In view to the mercy of the court. The view in the case of fola U. Webb vs. Raiph

"Mr. Hull then recommended Kiley to the mercy of the court. "In view of the circumstances," said Mr. Hull, "I feel inclined to recommend the accused to the leniency and mercy of the court. The circumstances seem to indicate that these two your men had been drinking together on this afternoon. In their companionship, during this afternoon once or twice, Bogardus had spoken of Copeland and of getting money from Copeland and of using violence if necessary But the evidence, I think, showed that Kiey did not think Bogardus would commit murder. 'I feel," said Attorney Hull, "that I ought to urgs upon the court that he ought not to be sent to state's prison."

Attorney R. P. Freeman, counsel for Kiley, added a few words to Mr. Hull's in behalf of the accused.

Judge Wheeler then saked Kiley's age and Kiley answered that he was 14 years of age. "Is he the son of the late Thomas Riley" the judge asked, and upon receiving the reply that he was, Judge Wheeler said thoughtfully, "Thomas Kiley as I remember was a manly man."

Judge Wheeler then sentenced Kiley to nine months in fall, saying in passing sentence: "This young man has learned, as all persons learn sooner or later in life, that it is best to follow the straight and narrow way. He has come very near to being a participant in a very serious crime, a participant in a crime that means a heavy penalty."

The matter of the bounty for catching Walter King, the man who ran away with one of George G. Avery's horses and carriages, was taken up. The two claimants were Leon Shippee of Fiskdale, Mass, and Mrs. Sarah A. Dart of the same place. Shippee was awarded $35, and Mrs. Dart received $15.

After putting over until the May term the case against Emily S. Sheles with a possibility of settlement before it reaches trial, the January term of the criminal superior court was adjourned without day by Sheriff Sidney A, Brown.

Judge Wheeler admitted them.

Eugene Sweet, living on Sunnyside Avenue, Norwich, Conn., says: "It is at least twelve years ago that I first learned of the value of Doan's Kidney Pilis. At that time I was in great need of a kidney remedy. For eight weeks I had been confined to my bed on account of lumbago, and was almost helpless, not being able to move at all without assistance. My suffering was about all any person could endure Sharp pains across my loins and kidney regions caused me misery of the worst kind. In addition to this I was annoyed by the imperfect action of the kidney secretions. I had three of the best physicians in Providence. R. I. but they failed to make the elighitest improvement in my condition. It was finally my good fortune to read of Doan's Kidney Pilis, and I was an omuch impressed with what was said in their favor that I began their use. Their beneficial effect was soon noticeable and I continued to improve until by the time I had taken the contents of four boxes. I was able to resume my work. I give the entire credit to Doan's Kidney Pilis, and from that time on I have never been without the remedy in the house.
